

BENEDICT'S APPEAL

IN AID OF SSAFA, THE ARMED FORCES CHARITY

Benedict's Brother is the inspiring novel written by Tricia Walker, voted "Book of the Year" by Publishing News.

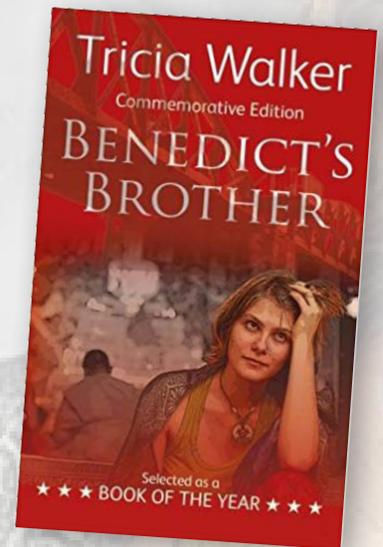

The novel tells the moving tale of Benedict as she embarks on a journey to Thailand to scatter her uncle's ashes at the Bridge on the River Kwai and tries to understand why the former Japanese prisoner-of-war made such an unusual request.

Sadly, earlier this year, Tricia Walker passed away. Tricia's proudest achievement was the publication of her incredibly moving novel, Benedict's Brother, and the progress she and her team had made to turn it into a major film. Tricia was keen to support SSAFA, the Armed Forces charity on the commemorative edition of the book, and for every copy sold, £3 will be paid in support of SSAFA, the Armed Forces charity.

SSAFA, the Armed Forces charity has been providing lifelong support to our Forces and their families since 1885. Last year our staff and team of volunteers helped more than 73,000 people in need, from second World War veterans to young men and women who have served in recent conflicts.

Whatever challenges they're facing, members of the Armed Forces community can rely on SSAFA. Our network of more than 5,000 trained volunteers provides practical and emotional support for serving personnel, veterans and military families across the UK and worldwide.

As the UK's oldest national Armed Forces charity, we share our history with the men and women of the UK's Armed Forces. Her Majesty the Queen has been our Patron for over 60 years and continues to support the charity today.
